

TTWEB

The New Wave of Host Connectivity Management

TTWeb provides unprecedented control over the deployment of your host connectivity software combined with centralized configuration, license management and security.

Software distribution, management and configuration is a logistical nightmare for most organizations. Whether it is the initial installation, change to a new product or simply updating an existing one, there is a great cost in time and resources attached to this activity. With Turbosoft's latest offering, TTWeb these functions are automated and centralized, making rollout blowout a thing of the past.

Reduced Deployment costs

TTWeb has all of the power of Turbosoft's popular terminal emulation solution TTWin, but with the added benefit of automating the deployment and management of software. In short, TTWeb will allow you to take advantage of major reductions in the cost of keeping software current whilst ensuring that the users get the greatest benefit in the shortest time. Furthermore, with TTWeb, the deployment can be completely invisible to the user.

Customised configuration

As well as automating the deployment of the software, TTWeb can be centrally configured and customized for each individual or group of users that make up the organization. The central control of software configuration greatly reduces the ongoing support costs. All in all, Turbosoft's TTWeb offers IT managers an unprecedented opportunity to take control of the management and distribution of software.

Flexible deployment options

TTWeb can be used as an application embedded within a web page, or as a stand alone application. The embedded control offers you the ability to seamlessly integrate host access into your web page. Again, TTWeb can be totally customized for your users.

License management

The benefits of TTWeb go further still by taking the guesswork out of license management. TTWeb's license server enables the administrator to monitor license usage from anywhere on the network, and optimise the usage of TTWeb.
